

Permission to View Your NHS Summary Care Record

Your Summary Care Record contains information from your health record such as your current prescription, allergies and any bad reactions to medication you have had in the past. It will also include your name, address, date of birth and your unique NHS Number to help identify you correctly.

The pharmacist/pharmacy technician involved in providing care to you would like to view your Summary Care Record in order to provide the best possible care for you from the most up to date information available.

Only the pharmacist/pharmacy technician involved in your care will be able to access your Summary Care Record. Whenever your record is accessed their details will be recorded should you wish to question this at any point in the future.

You can change this permission at any point just by informing the pharmacy. Further information on SCR can be found at:
